

“Sander of course is a master of color—everyone talks about that—but he’s a master of fabric and of drape as well. His clothes hit a rare mark: intuitive but formal, easy but precise, the silky comforting garment one locates in the closet as much by the pleasure of touch as by sight. His work, with its flowing ease, reminds me of some of the great Hollywood designers of the 1930s. Translate those delicious pastel silks to black or white and they’re still just as delicious.”
